Tuesday's filing deadline sets ballot for November

BY BOB DEMAREE

The deadline for candidates to file for open spots on the November general election ballot was noon on Tuesday and a few candidates have stepped up to create races for three of the four County Council districts that previously only had Republicans running.

On Tuesday, a Democratic candidacy was submitted for John Hutchinson to seek County Council District 4, joining Dwayne May, whose Republican candidacy was filed Thursday. The person elected will replace incumbent Republican Judy Smith, who decided not to seek re-election.

Meanwhile on Friday, libertarian Ronald Hoeferkamp completed paperwork to file for County Council District 1. He will face Republican incumbent Ray Denning in the general election.

Additionally, Republican incumbent Ray Black Jr. will face Democrat Thomas Ray Sedam Sr. for County Council District 3. Meanwhile, incumbent Republican Chris Shelton of County Council District 2 will run unopposed in the general election.

Other new Republican filings on Tuesday included Lawrence Mikesell for Smyrna Township Trustee and Chad Wehner for Milton Township Trustee. A new Democratic filing on Tuesday was

Workers apply rock to the sides of the new elevator shaft at Madison's Crystal Beach Pool House on Vaughn Drive. The elevator is needed to make the facility ADA compliant and allow access to a new second-floor event center. The rock siding will help the new portion of the building match the iconic rock facade of the historic facility built during the Works Progress Administration from 1937-1939.

Madison decides to rebid pool portion of Crystal Beach project

BY BOB DEMAREE

A project to renovate Crystal Beach pool and pool house will be reopened for bids — specifically work needed on the pool itself — after significant structural damage and deterioration to the iconic water park was discovered by contractors earlier this year.

The city is moving forward with rehabilitation of the pool house, the second floor event room and a new elevator to gain ADA access to that area but work on the pool will be excluded from the original contract and later rebid.

Madison's Board of Public Works and Safety heard a report on the project at Tuesday's meeting to explain changes in the project contract originally awarded to Poole Group for both the pool house and the pool.

Nicole Schell, the city's director of planning, said that with cost for the pool work increasing — estimates are that the pool needs about $1.8 million in repairs and upgrades — after the damage and deterioration was discovered, work on the pool will be separately "bid so we can get the best cost for that."

Mayor Bob Courtney Courtney said that once the scope of work and a financial plan is Columnist Charlie Rohlfing and his 50-year-old BMW R75 motorcycle that he recently rode 4,500 miles from Madison to Nevada and back are shown.

On the road with Charlie's Beat

Regular readers of this weekly column may have noticed its absence the last two weeks. That's because I was on the road and basically off the grid on a western motorcycle adventure. In June I turned 65 years old, and my vintage BMW motorcycle turned 50. An auspicious combination, to be sure. So let's ride!

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

On June 16, I headed west to Springfield, Missouri, for the annual BMW Motorcycle Rally with several local friends. We camped there for the weekend in the 98 degree heat, and then on Sunday they headed home and I struck out again to the west. I angled north to catch US Highway 50, with the goal to stay on 50 all the way to Sacramento.

Route 50 (the same one that runs through Versailles and North Vernon just to our north) is the historic east-west highway linking California and Maryland, long before I-70 and all the rest. They call it "The Board of trustees holds hearing to clear way to hire new superintendent

BY BOB DEMAREE

The Board of Trustees of Madison Consolidated Schools held a public hearing on the superintendent's contract Tuesday — a requirement by Indiana code — that lays the groundwork for hiring the corporation's new superintendent next week.

Indiana code public requires a hearing on the proposed contract to be held at least seven days before a contract is entered into by the board and the superintendent. The board of trustees will meet next Wednesday with plans to hire the new superintendent and approve a contract for that position.

The contract term begins Thursday, July 14, the day after next Wednesday's meeting, and ends June 30, 2025, providing for automatic one-year extensions. The contract grants an initial starting salary of $145,000 that allows for base salary increases equivalent to the highest base salary increase received by a school corporation teacher if the superintendent is evaluated as highly effective and achieves the board's annual performance objectives. Each contract year provides for a combined minimum of 29 vacation and personal days, and a minimum of seven sick days, but also allows

Residents ask for sidewalks on Hannah Drive

Walkers and bikers now must share road with traffic

Miles Ridge residents Ron Lanham and Robert Mustafa claim Hannah Drive is one of the most scenic and enjoyable places to walk on Madison's hilltop but those who use it for that purpose face heavy traffic on a windy and hilly road with no sidewalks or streetlights.

They said vehicles traveling to and from the Miles Ridge Subdivision often go faster than is safe and walking along the roadway is dangerous when cars and trucks swing wide on one of the sharp curves or pop over a hill. That's why Lanham and Mustafa asked Madison City Council on Tuesday to consider employing speed

Residents in the area of Miles Ridge Road and Hannah Drive on Madison's hilltop came before Madison City Council on Tuesday to ask for speed bumps, rumble strips and speed enforcement on Hannah Drive and/or a walking and bike path developed to provide a safer route for pedestrians who use Hannah between Miles Ridge and Ivy Tech Drive.

Rescuers work until midnight on Clifty rope rescue

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A woman sustained a knee injury on Trail 5 near Oak Grove at Clifty Falls State Park on Saturday, requiring an extraction that took more than two hours by rescuers.

Madison Township Fire Chief Robert Black said the rescue required use of a stokes basket for the woman who was unable to walk after the injury occurred near a creek. Black said the rescue "wasn't really complicated but it was time consuming because of where she was at."

The rescue effort began at 8:30 p.m. on Saturday and wasn't completed until approximately midnight when Norton's King's Daughters' Health EMS transported her to the hospital.

Madison Township Fire Department was assisted by Rykers' Ridge, Clifty 6 Volunteer Fire Department and Hanover Township Fire Department.

Shortly after returning from that call, Madison Township responded to a trash can on fire along North Olive Branch Road. Black said the trash can had been near a house, but was moved away and successfully extinguished.

He said fireworks may have been the cause, but he wasn't certain.

bumps or constructing a sidewalk along the west side of the roadway.

Mustafa, an engineer, said the area is already graded for the work and adding a concrete or asphalt lane at the edge of the roadway would serve walkers, bikers and those in golf carts by providing a safer alternative to traveling along the edge of the roadway.

"We just need a walking path — it's already graded for it — and we're just talking about a half-mile," Mustafa, a resident of Hannah Drive, said.

He noted many people already use the road for walking and biking and that use would surely increase if there was a safer alternative. In fact, he'd like to see the former city landfill located to the northeast along Hannah Drive designated as a wildlife habitat so visitors could take walks and watch the red fox, red-winged blackbirds, deer, turkey, coyotes and rabbits that romp in fields of wildflowers.

Lanham, who lives at the corner of Miles Ridge Road and Hannah Drive, said the area not only provides a good place for exercise and recreation but it could serve as a pedestrian connection for Miles Ridge residents and the shopping centers across Clifty Drive if the state can be convinced to install a crosswalk. That could also benefit residents of surrounding neighborhoods by connecting the hilltop for walkers, bikers and golf cart drivers. With no public parks currently located in Miles Ridge, Lanham said children tend to play in the street so slowing traffic with speed bumps, enforcement and more signs is an issue of safety especially since there are no sidewalks or streetlights in Miles Ridge.

"We've got hundreds of kids on that road and dog walkers, bikes and golf carts and the point where cars turn from Miles Ridge onto Hannah Drive is the beginning of a race track," Lanham said. "If we had some speed bumps it should slow people down."

Madison Police Chief John Wallace admitted that speeding traffic is a problem on Hannah Drive and many other locations in the city and officers try to show up and provide a deterrent when they can but with so many areas in need and so many other calls to answer it is not easy to assign an officer to an area.

Mark Campbell

Madison Police Chief John Wallace and hilltop resident Ron Lanham discuss the needs for a safer way for pedestrians and bikers to travel Hannah Drive from Miles Ridge Road to Ivy Tech Drive and the nearby shopping complex north of Clifty Drive.

"I think Ron is right and it is a heavily traveled area," Wallace said, noting that maybe MPD can locate a mobile radar unit in the area to increase awareness while monitoring the area when possible.

Mayor Bob Courtney agreed that the area is scenic and added that it was highlighted for its potential in a recently completed Parks Master Plan conducted by the city.

"Our master plan goal is to create more recreational opportunities right in that area," Courtney said.

Courtney noted that sidewalks and streetlights are "critical to any subdivision development" but such infrastructure was not mandated in the city's developmental regulations in the past, leaving places like Miles Ridge and Hannah Drive without sidewalks and lights. He said crosswalks and better sidewalks are a priority throughout the city and some progress is being made.

The city is currently building sidewalks and crosswalks in another hilltop neighborhood, the Oak Hill Subdivision, and there have been crosswalk improvements made downtown.

"What you have done downtown is absolutely phenomenal," Mustafa said, "but I'd like to see some of that on the hilltop."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, July 7, the 188th day of 2022. There are 177 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 7, 1976, the United States Military Academy at West Point included female cadets for the first time as 119 women joined the Class of 1980.

On this date:

In 1846, U.S. annexation of California was proclaimed at Monterey after the surrender of a Mexican garrison.

In 1865, four people were hanged in Washington, D.C. for conspiring with John Wilkes Booth to assassinate President Abraham Lincoln: Lewis Powell (aka Lewis Payne), David Herold, George Atzerodt and Mary Surratt, the first woman to be executed by the federal government.

In 1898, the United States annexed Hawaii.

In 1930, construction began on Boulder Dam (later Hoover Dam).

In 1948, six female U.S. Navy reservists became the first women to be sworn in to the regular Navy.

In 1981, President Ronald Reagan announced he was nominating Arizona Judge Sandra Day O'Connor to become the first female justice on the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 2005, terrorist bombings in three Underground stations and a double-decker bus killed 52 victims and four bombers in the worst attack on London since World War II.

In 2010, Los Angeles police charged Lonnie Franklin Jr. in the city's "Grim Sleeper" serial killings. (Franklin, who was sentenced to death for the killings of nine women and a teenage girl, died in prison in March 2020 at the age of 67.)

In 2016, Micah Johnson, a Black Army veteran who served in Afghanistan, opened fire on Dallas police, killing five officers in an act of vengeance for the fatal police shootings of Black men; the attack ended with Johnson being killed by a bomb delivered by a police robot.

Ten years ago: Jubilant Libyans chose a new parliament in their first nationwide vote in decades. The Obama administration declared Afghanistan the United States' newest "major non-NATO ally." Serena Williams beat Agnieszka Radwanska of Poland 6-1, 5-7, 6-2 to win a fifth Wimbledon singles championship; about five hours later, she and sister Venus were back on Centre Court to win the doubles final.

Five years ago: Islamic militants attacked a remote Egyptian army outpost in the Sinai Peninsula with a suicide car bomb and heavy machine gun fire, killing at least 23 soldiers in the deadliest attack in the turbulent region in two years.

One year ago: A squad of gunmen assassinated Haitian President Jovenel Moïse and wounded his wife in an overnight raid on their home. (More than 40 suspects have been arrested, including at least 18 Colombian soldiers and 20 Haitian police officers.) Former President Donald Trump sued Facebook, Twitter and Google's YouTube, claiming that he and other conservatives had been wrongfully censored. A federal judge ruled that the Air Force was mostly responsible for a former serviceman killing more than two dozen people at a Texas church in 2017 because it failed to submit his criminal history into a database, which should have prevented him from purchasing firearms

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, July 8, the 189th day of 2022. There are 176 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 8, 1972, the Nixon administration announced a deal to sell $750 million in grain to the Soviet Union. (However, the Soviets were also engaged in secretly buying subsidized American grain, resulting in what critics dubbed "The Great Grain Robbery.")

On this date:

In 1776, Col. John Nixon gave the first public reading of the Declaration of Independence, outside the State House (now Independence Hall) in Philadelphia.

In 1947, a New Mexico newspaper, the Roswell Daily Record, quoted officials at Roswell Army Air Field as saying they had recovered a "flying saucer" that crashed onto a ranch; officials then said it was actually a weather balloon. (To this day, there are those who believe what fell to Earth was an alien spaceship carrying extra-terrestrial beings.)

In 1950, President Harry S. Truman named Gen. Douglas MacArthur commander-in-chief of United Nations forces in Korea. (Truman ended up sacking MacArthur for insubordination nine months later.)

In 1989, Carlos Saul Menem was inaugurated as president of Argentina in the country's first transfer of power from one democratically elected civilian leader to another in six decades.

In 1994, Kim Il Sung, North Korea's communist leader since 1948, died at age 82.

In 2000, Venus Williams beat Lindsay Davenport 6-3, 7-6 (3) for her first Grand Slam title, becoming the first Black female champion at Wimbledon since Althea Gibson in 1957-58.

In 2010, the largest spy swap between the U.S. and Russia since the Cold War unfolded as 10 people accused of spying in suburban America pleaded guilty to conspiracy and were ordered deported to Russia in exchange for the release of four prisoners accused of spying for the West.

In 2016, on the first day of a two-day summit in Warsaw, NATO leaders geared up for a long-term standoff with Russia, ordering multinational troops to Poland and the three Baltic states as Moscow moved forward with its own plans to station two new divisions along its western borders.

Ten years ago: A bomb in eastern Afghanistan killed six NATO service members on a day in which a total of 29 people died from roadside bombs and insurgent attacks. Roger Federer equaled Pete Sampras' record of seven men's singles titles at the All England Club and won his 17th Grand Slam title overall, beating Andy Murray 4-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4. Academy Award-winning actor Ernest Borgnine, 95, died in Los Angeles.

Five years ago: At the Group of 20 summit in Hamburg, Germany, world powers lined up against President Donald Trump on climate change, reaffirming their support for international efforts to fight global warming. After their first face-to-face meeting, Russian President Vladimir Putin said he thought Trump believed his denials of Russian meddling in the U.S. presidential vote.

One year ago: President Joe Biden said the U.S. military operation in Afghanistan would end on Aug. 31; in a speech in the White House East Room, Biden made an impassioned argument for exiting the nearly 20-year war without sacrificing more America lives, but acknowledged that there would be no "mission accomplished" moment to celebrate. Amid increasing coronavirus infections, Tokyo's governor said fans would not be allowed in Tokyo-area stadiums and arenas for the Olympics, which would begin in two weeks. Former South African president Jacob Zuma turned himself over to police to begin serving a 15-month prison term for contempt. Lawyer Michael Avenatti was sentenced to 2 ½ years in prison for trying to extort up to $25 million from Nike; Avenatti had gained fame representing porn star Stormy Daniels in lawsuits against Donald Trump. Fourteen-year-old Zaila Avant-garde of Louisiana spelled "murraya" correctly to win the Scripps National Spelling Bee, becoming the first African American champion.

Loneliest Road" because it really does get desolate and sparsely traveled out in the western states.

So westward I went. I managed Dodge City, Kansas, the first day out of Springfield, still caught in the stultifying heat wave. And Pueblo, Colorado, by day two. The mountains were in sight! Thus began the most glorious (and cooler) days of the trip, through western Colorado, across southern Utah, and into Nevada.

Utah and Nevada is where the road earns its lonely reputation. By and large there are no towns, no farms, and no population of any kind. The distance between gas stops could be as high as 175 miles. But the scenery was breathtaking, with painted mountains and mesas and expansive valleys.

In Ely, Nevada, about a day's ride from California, after 2,000 miles of west, West, WEST, I was ready for a change. I swung north into Idaho, then east across Wyoming, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and home. The final mileage total was right at 4,500, and I probably pushed about $650 worth of premium gas through my bike's 5 gallon tank.

I rolled back into Madison last Tuesday, just as Regatta was kicking off, with a sore butt, aching shoulders, and a newfound appreciation for my great life in my amazing hometown.

You see, I saw and learned a lot out on The Loneliest Road, a byway that goes right through the heart of hundreds of small towns across the middle of our country. I was able to compare and contrast what we have here, versus how people live and work in other places.

And I can tell you, if you didn't already know, the health of America's small town main streets is not good. I saw downtowns that could have been mistaken for war zones, they were so neglected and vacant. I saw entire communities that were mere shadows of their former glory.

But I can also say that the people I met were not as desperate and unhappy as you might expect. In fact, the folks of small town America still seem upbeat and positive. They seem to have adapted. They've evolved to make the most of the new reality. They still paint signs cheering their local high school teams. They still plant their crops and raise their cattle.

But make no mistake, what we have in Madison is special. Maybe even preeminent in all the country. I can say with certainty that on the narrow slice of America that I traversed, nothing even came close. The vibrancy and health of our downtown, and indeed our entire community, is far and above anything I saw in the 11 states I traveled.

And coming off another spectacular Regatta weekend just reinforces my point. No other small town can boast our mix of world class events, Hoosier hospitality, and quality of life.

Will I ride again? Not for a while, that's for sure. I'd never really been on a real cross country jaunt, and I wanted to prove to myself that I (and my trusty old steed) could make the journey. I do know this, the grass is definitely not greener on the other side of the fence. In fact, if they didn't irrigate out there in the west, it wouldn't be green at all!

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

The July installment of Music In The Park will be at the Broadway Fountain on Friday, starting at 6 p.m. This is a free show, sponsored by Madison Main Street. On Saturday Thomas Family Winery will be having one of its famous theme parties, this time in the spirit of the old Studio 52 disco glitter era. Put on your platform shoes and bell bottom pants and Hustle the night away! And looking out a week, the John Moreland show at Red Bicycle Hall still has a few tickets left. This will be one of those amazing packed house events that people will talk about for years to come. My friend Drew Eades, who knows about this sort of thing, calls John Moreland "one of the best songwriters living" right now. High praise indeed. Head over to RedBicycleHall.com for tickets.

determined for the pool work, bids will be sought. "This will allow us to work with the existing contract with Poole Group on finishing the improvements that are all related to the pool house itself and then pursue as a separate contract for the reconstruction of the swimming pool."

In approving change orders for Crystal Beach, Schell explained here will be a $292,154 decrease in costs after removing the pool from the work being done by Poole Group. With a few increases for other items, the overall total of the change order is a decrease of $262,330.

The target completion date for the pool house is expected to be in September, although Schell said "it will most likely be done before that" with the elevator that will provide ADA accessibility to the second floor the last component of that phase of the project.

In other business:

• Courtney presented two letters from the Indiana Department of Transportation that all improvements are now complete from the Milton-Madison bridge approach. Effective June 19, INDOT transferred three bridges on the former State Road 56 (Main Street) to Jefferson County — the bridge over Clifty Creek, bridge over Crooked Crook and bridge over railroad incline. Also, on the same date, INDOT transferred a portion of State Road 56 to the city of Madison that dead ends into Sering Street.

• Mike Pittman, who lives on Elm Street near John Paul Park, reported about "a major fireworks display" on the ball diamond in the park on July 3 between 9:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. "There's a lot of dry grass and very little lighting. My concern is safety," said Pittman, who noted he loves celebrating Independence Day, but he felt there should have have been a fire truck in place and other safety precautions. He said there was a large crowd. "They were lined across Vine Street and all the way to the top of the park" he said guessing that from 100 to 300 people attended. "There were quite a few people."

"Any time you're having a gathering of that many people at a city park, you're clearly looking at a park closure, and that's what needs to happen" for the city to understand what's happening and to ensure safety precautions are in place, City attorney Joe Jenner said.

Courtney suggested the city's event planning guide established for festivals and street closings could be helpful in addressing the matter in the future, noting they "are requirements that we're using now in one fashion but they could actually be more comprehensive and apply to gatherings of a certain size."

• Tabled a PACE extension for 811 East Second Street in which Schell noted half of the $25,000 grant has been awarded. Board member Karl Eaglin said he's received indications that the property may be for sale. Additionally, Schell noted she has not recently observed the remainder of the work being completed. The board tabled the matter to request that owner Michael Rawert appear at the next board meeting to explain his plans for the property. Schell said the work included on the original grant application must be completed and properties cannot be sold without voiding the grant prior to the grant being closed out, which would require Rawert to repay the previously awarded PACE funds.

• Approved and discussed event plans for the Madison Chautauqua Festival of Art, scheduled for Sept. 24-25, and for the Madison Vintage Thunder, scheduled for Sept. 17-18.

• Approved a resolution for Commonwealth Roofing to close four parking spaces from July 18-22 at 209 West Main Street for roof repairs. The work likely won't take that much time and the spaces won't be closed that long, but a week was scheduled in the event of weather delays.

• Board member David Carlow commended the traffic plan and vehicle flow in downtown Madison after Saturday night's fireworks. "The police department did a fabulous job manning the intersections, keeping the traffic on Main Street going west. The traffic was just a continuous flow."

Courtney said a good traffic management plan was in place. "Anything you plan well can be executed well. There was some intentionality on how we moved traffic this year which hadn't been done before," he said.

Dale resigns as Trimble football coach

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Trimble County High School head football coach J.P. Dale resigned Tuesday morning, effective immediately.

J.P. Dale

Dale, who coached the Raiders for one season, cited family and personal issues for his abrupt resignation.

"Recent developments with my father's health and other circumstances, I think it's in everybody's best interest I step aside," Dale wrote on the team's Facebook page. "The time, distance, etc., with these developments will not allow me to devote 110% effort to effectively lead this program."

Trimble County head football coach J.P. Dale (middle) fires up his players during the school's media day back in July 2021.

Dale was hired last year after serving as an assistant coach at several area schools, most notably at Carroll County where he was the long-time defensive coordinator. Trimble County went 2-8 in Dale's lone season, defeating Switzerland County 44-6 and closing out the season with a 28-20 victory over Jackson County.

The two wins were the most the Raiders have won in a season since going 3-8 in 2014. The school did not field a varsity team in 2018 and 2019.

"I'm not sure how I will adjust to not coaching for the first time in 25 years, but I can (hopefully) take solace in the fact that we were able to leave Trimble County football better than we found it and will continue to improve," Dale wrote.

Trimble County graduated a large class of 11 seniors last year but returns several talented players, including senior quarterback James Thomas Wilcoxson, who rushed for 1,098 yards last year and threw for over 700 yards and was named an all-state selection as a punter. Wilcoxson also led the team in tackles

The Raiders also return senior tackle Jerry Nevils, who had eight sacks last year, and junior running back Jessup Smith, who rushed for nearly 700 yards.

Dale's departure is just the latest for a Trimble program that has had a revolving door at the coaching position recently. Mike Isley coached the team for two years before its hiatus and Brian Simmins led the squad for the two seasons prior to Dale's hiring.

Trimble County has not yet released its full football schedule, but the Raiders are scheduled to open the season at Caverna on Aug. 26. Teams can begin practice on Sunday.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Bobby King outduels father to win Pro-Lite Series race

BY JORDAN BEAR

It was quite the day for the King family which saw son-father duo of Bobby King and Jimmy King finish 1-2 in the final heat of Pro-Lite Series race on the Ohio River on Sunday.

Bobby King, driving the E-242 Diego's Mexican Grill, took control of the race early on and held off his dad to pull out the win.

"It's weird racing against my dad, but man what a weekend," Bobby King said. "Our boat ran so well all weekend long and once we were able to get the inside lane in the final, we just put it forward and never looked back."

King didn't have the best start to the weekend. On Friday, he was penalized for jumping the gun and pushed back to one of the last finishers with a one-minute penalty. After that, however, King never looked back as he dominated his next two preliminary heats and put himself in prime position in the final heat on Sunday afternoon.

"We know we were going to get lane one and we had to take advantage of that," King said. "I knew dad wasn't going to let up so I made sure we kept right up to the buoys and had the shorter track around the course and we were fortunate to come away with the win today. I couldn't be happier with my team, the crew, everyone. It was just a great effort by everyone involved with the 242 team."

Jimmy King, who is the regular pilot of the U-3 Go3Racing team in the H1 Unlimited circuit, drove his E-2 River City Printing to a pair of heat win and felt like he had a good chance in the final but couldn't get around his son.

"It's going to take a little getting used to," Jimmy King said. "I guess it's a little passing of the guard."

Steve Huff won a preliminary heat and finished third in the E-98 Faster Than Cancer Foundation while Dave Smith was fourth in the E-79 That Lil' Damm Bad Influence. Dillon Goedel was fifth in the E-54 Bo's Back and Gary Chalfant, who claimed his first ever preliminary heat win on Friday, placed sixth in the E-5 Fly Boy.

Chalfant also provided fans with the best highlight of the weekend. As he was coming around the final turn in Heat 3B, the engine on his boat died 100 feet from the finish line. Rather than accept a DNF, Chalfant gallantly tried to get

Reds spoil Scherzer's return with a 1-0 ninth-inning win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Max Scherzer turned in a stellar performance for the New York Mets in his return from an oblique injury.

Perhaps more importantly for the NL East leaders, the ace right-hander felt good the entire time on a steamy Tuesday night in Cincinnati.

Scherzer struck out 11 while pitching six innings of two-hit ball, but New York lost 1-0 to the last-place Reds on Mike Moustakas' game-ending sacrifice fly.

Scherzer, who turns 38 in three weeks, had been sidelined by a strained oblique muscle on his left side. It was his first big league game since May 18.

Mets manager Buck Showalter took Scherzer out after 79 pitches — mostly fastballs and sliders — but the ace believed he could have gone deeper into the game.

"This is a good problem to have," Scherzer said. "Buck is going to make the best decision for the ballclub and for my health and my long-term health, so I completely understand where he's coming from. With that being said, I didn't have any problems tonight. I felt good. I felt strong. I had nothing tighten up. I wanted to get to that 90, 95 pitch count."

Tommy Pham led off the Cincinnati ninth with a double into the right-field corner against Seth Lugo (1-2). It was the Reds' fourth hit of the game.

Tyler Naquin was walked intentionally before Donovan Solano walked to load the bases. Moustakas' deep fly ball to center drove in Pham with the game-winner.

Reds rookie Nick Lodolo combined with four relievers on a six-hitter. Lodolo struck out eight and gave up just three hits in 4 $^{2}/_{3}$ innings in his return from a back injury.

It was Lodolo's first major league game since April 24.

"Lodolo — as good as he was — that lineup made him work," Reds manager David Bell said. "He was really on a mission."

Hunter Strickland (2-2) got three outs for the win.

MOVES

The Reds claimed right-hander Ian Gibaut off waivers from the Dodgers. They also optioned utilityman Max Schrock and catcher Mark Kolozsvary to Triple-A Louisville. Catcher Chris Okey was designated for assignment.

Mets 7, Reds 4 (Monday) — Brandon Nimmo and Francisco Lindor homered, helping the New York Mets beat the lowly Cincinnati Reds 7-4 on Monday night.

AP source: Celtics get Pacers' Brogdon, bolster backcourt

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Brad Stevens thought the Boston Celtics needed another playmaker and more depth to win their first NBA title since 2007-08.

He may have found both with one big move Friday.

Boston's president of basketball operations acquired combo guard Malcolm Brogdon from the Indiana Pacers for five players, all backup forwards, and a 2023 first-round pick, a person familiar with the deal told The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the deal cannot officially be announced until next week.

Stevens, who grew up in Indianapolis and coached Butler not far from the Pacers home court, accomplished two key goals by getting Brogdon.

"I think the way that teams work together and operate together are fragile," Stevens said after the Celtics lost to Golden State in the NBA Finals in six games. "And I think your identity as a team, when you find one that's successful — which we did this year on the defensive end of the floor and when we were at our best sharing the ball offensively — those things are fragile. So just to add (players) doesn't mean that you're not taking something away from the group."

Brogdon appears to be a perfect fit in a backcourt that already features NBA Defensive Player of the Year Marcus Smart, Jaylen Brown and Derrick White, who played a key role in Boston's postseason run.

And now they've added a leader who averaged 19.1 points, 5.9 assists and 5.1 rebounds last season.

Brogdon's biggest problem has been staying healthy. Injuries limited him to just 36 games in 2021-22 and the 29-year-old hasn't played more than 56 games since he joining Indiana in 2019.

Stevens didn't give up any of his key pieces, either. The Pacers get veteran Daniel Theis, Aaron Nesmith and Nic Stauskas — former first-round picks — Juwan Morgan and Malik Fitts. In addition to ading Theis' physical presence, the Pacers also now have $31 million in salary cap room and will have three first-round picks next summer if the Cleveland Cavaliers make the playoffs.

The deal came as no surprise in Indiana.

Conference realignment makes another seismic shift

BY JOHN MARSHALL
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Conference realignment in college sports has been going on since 1984, when the Supreme Court invalidated the NCAA's national television contract for football.

The conference juggling has gone through ebbs and flows through the years since, from small schools bumping up to bigger leagues to power programs switching to other major conferences.

The latest move, Southern California and UCLA bolting the Pac-12 for the Big Ten, could be part of a tectonic shift. Not just because of the marquee schools involved, but because it happened at a time when the NCAA is looking to take a more decentralized approach to governing college athletics, handing more power to schools and conferences.

"You might think this is more seismic because it's involving wealthier schools — and arguably it is — but also it's seismic because of the underpinnings of the system, the foundations of the system, are being challenged at a time when the financial structure is exploding," Smith College economics professor Andrew Zimbalist said Friday. "It may have larger ramifications, but it is a process that's been ongoing."

The decisions by USC and UCLA to join the Big Ten in 2024 come roughly a year after Texas and Oklahoma announced they were leaving the Big 12 for the Southeastern Conference.

While surprising, even to Pac-12 officials, the announcement Thursday gives the Los Angeles schools stability and exposure in a shifting collegiate sports landscape.

"It's huge for our student athletes, just from a national exposure perspective," UCLA athletic director Martin Jarmond said. "They're going compete at the highest level in a major elite conference in different time zones. UCLA is always national, but now we have the ability for student athletes to showcase their talent across the country. That's exciting."

For all the other benefits, the bottom line to the defections is the bottom line.

The SEC has become a college football behemoth that distributed $54.6 million to each of its member schools in the 2021 fiscal year. The Big Ten has tried to keep up and had a per-school distribution of $46.1 million last year.

The Pac-12 had the lowest distribution number among Power Five schools, paying its member institutions $19.8 million in 2021.

At the core, it's all about the TV.

The SEC has a $3 billion deal with ESPN that's set to kick in in 2024 and the Big Ten is currently negotiating a massive media rights deal. The Pac-12 has floundered when it comes to TV as the conference's network has struggled to gain footing while many of its games are played late at night.

With costs to run college athletic programs have climbed in recent years, exacerbated by the pandemic, moving to an even bigger conference provides more financial stability. For the Big Ten, adding UCLA and USC gives the conference a foothold in the nation's second-largest media market.

"Money talks," said Tom McMillen, President and CEO of Lead1, which represents Football Bowl Subdivision athletic directors and programs. "I was on the board of regents when Maryland jumped in to the Big Ten and there were all kinds of arguments about it was academics and it was this and that, but ultimately it came down to money. I think that's the same case here."

The defections will create two mega conferences that will hold the majority of power and money, leaving the rest of leagues scrambling to keep up.

The tiering could stratify even more if the SEC and the Big Ten continue to expand, which could be the next step.

The future power structure could consist of two, maybe three mega conferences of up to 20 schools at the top, with the Power Five joining the Group of Five conferences in the tier below but still above the Football Championship Subdivision.

More schools in the Pac-12 and Big 12, along with the ACC, could look to bolt for more stability.

Conferences losing members likely will face two options: combining with another league to form a mega conference of their own or expand on the current membership. The Pac-12 it plans to take the expansion route, issuing a statement on Friday that said it is exploring all expansion options.

"You have exploding costs on one end and your revenue sources are being decimated, which is a tremendous pressure," Zimbalist said. "On the other hand, what do you do? Well, something pretty radical I think is going to have to happen."

Uncertainty is the only thing that's certain at this point.

Felix gets mixed relay nod, heading to 10th worlds

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Allyson Felix was named to her 10th world championship team, where she will have a chance to run in the mixed relay event and add to her record medal collection.

Felix, whose 18 medals are the most in world-championship history, has announced that this will be her final season in track. At last month's U.S. championships, she finished sixth in the 400 meters and did not qualify for any individual events. But the 36-year-old was named to the mixed relay pool Tuesday when USA Track and Field released its 151-person roster for worlds.

The world championships run July 15-24 in Eugene, Oregon.

Missing from the roster was Sha'Carri Richardson, who failed to qualify for the finals of either the 100 or 200 meters at nationals. Richardson won the women's 100 at Olympic trials last year but was banned from the games after testing positive for a substance found in marijuana.

Among those named to the women's 4x100 relay pool was Gabby Thomas, the 200-meter champion in 2021 who has been dealing with a hamstring injury this season. Thomas finished eighth at nationals last month.

The U.S. will send nine reigning world champions and 29 medalists from Tokyo to the first world championships on American soil. Among those world champions is 100-meter titlist Christian Coleman, who was banned from the Olympics after a case involving missed doping tests.

One headline race of 10-day meet features reigning Olympic champion Sydney McLaughlin against reigning world champion Dalilah Muhammad in the 400-meter hurdles.

They have taken turns setting world records over the past three years; McLaughlin lowered it to 51.41 seconds last month at nationals. Muhammad sat out nationals with a hamstring injury. Her world title guaranteed her a spot on the U.S. team.

the engine re-started as he floated toward the line.

Rules state that in order for a boat's finish to be official, it must be under its own power. Just as he crossed the line, the engine turned over enough to move the propeller and cause foam to rise from the back of the boat. Officials ruled that he indeed was under his own power and awarded him third, leading the applause from the crowd which had been cheering him on.

The Pro-Lite Series will now head to Tri-Cities, Washington, July 29-31 and then will compete in Owensboro, Kentucky, Aug. 26-28.

Emotional cheating won't lead to bounce-back

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: Six months ago, my fiancee and I split up after 13 years together because of my emotional cheating. I know what I did was wrong, and I've taken responsibility for my actions.

For obvious reasons, she has lost all trust in me, which I completely understand. I love her, we have two children together, and I wish for nothing more than to work things out.

This is the second time we've split up. I've noticed that I throw chaos into our relationship. I tend to drift away from the relationship when things get tough.

I admit that when I violated her trust, I was in a dark place emotionally. I was depressed and unhappy. I didn't like the route our relationship was taking. We lacked communication (on both our parts) — but more from me.

It wasn't easy for me to admit what I was feeling.

We barely made any time to spend together, and when we did it would be either with the kids or a group of friends. We almost never made time for us.

What can I do? Can we bounce back from this? She says that things won't be the same. I understand why she believes that, but I know that we can find a way past this. She wants to be with me, but she needs time and space and doesn't know how she can trust me again.

What should I do? — Broken Trust

Dear Broken: You demonstrate impressive insight into what you believe is the root cause of your behavior.

Despite your insight, your behavior reflects an immature response to the stress in your life. Children lash out and then blame their behavior on their feelings. Adults are supposed to take their insights and actually do something differently in order.

Counseling would be helpful for you and the mother of your children. I also suggest you start the process of dating her. If she is willing to see you, you should arrange responsible childcare, and you should start the process of trying to reconnect.

Woman wonders how to nicely repel gym rat

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I am a very active woman. I go to the gym and do cardio and weightlifting four to five times per week.

I have done this since my late teens.

Recently a man at the gym has begun making small talk. He tells me his age, kids, marital status, etc., and has begun asking me questions and commenting on my beauty and body.

I am not interested in him, but don't want to be rude.

I enjoy the peace my workout brings to me. For this reason, I wear earbuds to keep from being disturbed, but this has not deterred him. He is getting worse and is constantly invading my space.

Is there a nice way to get this pest to leave me alone? — Working Out

Dear Working Out: The way you have phrased your dilemma is the stereotypical way women often respond to encroachment: "How can I respond to this without being rude?" "Is there a nice way to get this pest to leave me alone?"

Some people respond to non-verbal cues (leaving in your earbuds, conveying through your body language that you are not interested in conversing, etc.).

Others (such as this guy) interpret your niceness, your polite social cues, etc. as an invitation to encroach further.

Small talk might be a minor annoyance, but comments about your beauty and your body are completely inappropriate, and he needs to be shut down.

Because you say you want to be "nice," the next time this man invades your space at the gym, you should give him the full benefit of a neutrally worded and clear response, using both your words and body-language.

Stop what you are doing. Hold up your hand as a "stop sign." Say, "I'm here to work. I'm asking you not to approach me or try to converse with me, and I appreciate you respecting that. Thank you for understanding!"

Then you plug in your earbuds and resume your workout.

This man gets one polite notification from you. If he resumes — at all — you should take it to the manager, if necessary stating your case in writing, in case you need a record of your concerns.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — A knee-jerk reaction can put you in a compromising position. You might think you are proving your faithfulness when you are only creating more doubts. A relationship could seem like a seesaw with lots of ups and downs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Enjoy being more popular than usual. You may be today's influencer although you may not know it yet. Experiment with something new and unusual or make a change that gives you more freedom of choice.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Make sensible decisions about your budget. If money has slipped through your fingers during the last few days, it may mean less to you than it does to someone in need. Advice can improve your bottom line.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You may decide to prioritize happiness over material success now. Although optimistic news and helpful new opportunities could keep you focused on financial matters, there should be time for romance too.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Buy yourself some more time. If a relationship is going through a rocky phase, wait for better timing to mend the fences. You may be forced to retreat for a few days. Focus on your job and make necessary improvements there.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Gather more information before acting. There could be times when you think you are right when you are wrong. This is not a good time to make key job decisions since there is a chance the fine print will escape your scrutiny.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Bite back recriminations so you don't rock the boat. In the early part of the day, you may see only the worst side of an issue. Your judgment and timing could be off when you think about a family member or loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Some relationships are unchanging while others flow like a sparkling stream. An intimate conversation can bring you and a loved one closer. Avoid petty jealousies and sidestep someone's sketchy business tactics.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — An imaginative idea or spontaneous thought may not be realistic enough to put into practice. Write down your brainstorms or talk them over with a partner. When ideas are fully formed, put them into action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Change your attitude and ramp up your creativity. Give in to the temptation to try something new to show off your originality. A flirtation might let you enjoy the thrill of the chase without any lasting strings attached.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — It isn't possible to control anyone else, ever. If you feel sidetracked by inspiration, linear thinking may be hard to muster. The picture someone paints may not be accurate if something is not quite what it seems.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — If you are working for the common good, you could be seen as a hero. You might make a good impression by using your business contacts to support a charity. Stick to routines and the comfort of familiar places.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Honor the commitments you've made. Your heart is in the right place, so share your romantic feelings with a loved one. The grass isn't any greener no matter how lush and inviting it may look today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may be disappointed even though you hope for the best. There is a tendency to think that someone new is better than they really are. Tried and true companions will buoy up your spirits and can make you feel loved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Tact and diplomacy are essential items to keep in your toolbox. Remain quiet until someone is willing to listen to what you have to say. If you feel out of place at a social gathering, deconstruct it later and learn from it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Break out enough headspace from the hustle and bustle of daily life to make the most advantageous decision. Rules are sometimes broken by accident, but you may be reminded that rules are there for a reason.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — The person who seems least trustworthy might perform the most radically ethical acts. Once you get past the surface appearance, you may find something worthwhile. Widen your circle of contacts and acquaintances.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You could judge a book by its cover. Trust that a loved one will be loyal, and your faith can be rewarded. What seems like an obstacle will not become a stumbling block unless you blow it out of proportion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — One way to understand various relationships is to understand how each one affects your feelings and sense of well-being. Drawing comparisons might prevent you from making an effort to get beyond wishful thinking.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — If you do not get what you expect, then it only makes sense to realign your expectations. If you become too fixated on negotiating terms to your advantage, you might not be able to come to a satisfactory agreement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You may give your heart and money freely because you have faith that everything will work out for the best. However, keep your eyes open so that someone is not able to take advantage of your generosity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Use your people skills to avoid conflicts. Be sure you are standing on solid ground with a romantic partner before you make any commitment. Follow the rules where your possessions and finances are concerned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — All that glitters isn't gold. You may be like a magpie who is attracted by anything that shines and sparkles. A new love interest might spark romantic urges, but the attraction could be based on a misconception.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Choose quality over quantity. Putting forth some extra effort can create something far more satisfying in the end. You and a loved one can put your heads together and find something fun to do this weekend.

Morgan scores twice and US women down Haiti 3-0

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONTERREY, Mexico — Alex Morgan scored a pair of first-half goals and the U.S. women's national team defeated Haiti 3-0 on Monday night in the opening match of the CONCACAF W Championship.

The tournament determines the region's four direct berths in the 2023 Women's World Cup, co-hosted by Australia and New Zealand.

Midge Purce also scored for the United States, which has won the past two World Cups.

Morgan opened scoring for the U.S. in the 16th minute with a heel flick off a pass from Mallory Pugh that got past Haiti goalkeeper Lara Larco.

Morgan's second goal came on a header in the 23rd minute.

Haiti was awarded a penalty in the 42nd but Roselord Borgella's attempt hit the post and caromed away. Borgella was handed a red card in the 45th, but video review rescinded the call and she was given a yellow.

The United States appeared to score on an own goal in the 78th, but Megan Rapinoe was ruled offside. Purce scored her fourth international goal in the 84th.

U.S. coach Vlatko Andonovski praised Morgan and said he was pleased with the result, although there's things to work on before the Americans face Jamaica on Thursday.

"On the other side, we gave up a lot of opportunities, gave up a penalty kick. That's something we're going to have to do better and tie up a few things for the next game," Andonovski said.

Eight teams are split into two groups for the W Championship. The top two finishers in each group earn World Cup berths. The third place finishers in each group advance to a 10-team intercontinental playoff, to be held in New Zealand in February.

The winner of the W Championship also earns a spot in the 2024 Olympics.

Haiti has never qualified for a World Cup or an Olympics.

In the group's late match, Khadija Shaw scored in the eighth minute and Jamaica held on to defeat Mexico 1-0 in the late match.

Canada, Costa Rica, Panama and Trinidad & Tobago are in the other group.

2 sets down, Djokovic wins 26th consecutive Wimbledon match

BY HOWARD FENDRICH
AP TENNIS WRITER

It says a lot about Novak Djokovic that a two-sets-to-none hole at Wimbledon on a day he was hardly at his best never seemed insurmountable. Not to him. Not to anyone watching.

Says a lot about his history of overcoming that sort of deficit. A lot about his ability to adjust, to adapt and to right himself. A lot about his preeminence at the All England Club in recent years.

Djokovic spotted 10th-seeded Jannik Sinner of Italy the huge lead Tuesday, then worked his way back to win 5-7, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 at Centre Court, earning an 11th semifinal berth at Wimbledon with his 26th consecutive victory at the grass-court Grand Slam tournament.

"I always believed," said Djokovic, who faces ninth-seeded Cam Norrie of Britain next, "that I could turn the match around."

Among men, only Roger Federer has made more semifinal appearances at Wimbledon with 13 and won more championships (eight) than the seven Djokovic could reach by lifting the trophy Sunday for what would be a fourth year in a row.

"He makes you play differently — well, not differently, but in a way that he likes," Sinner said.

Djokovic was responsible for just one of Wednesday's comebacks: In all four singles quarterfinals on a sunny day, the player who dropped the first set ended up victorious. Norrie edged David Goffin of Belgium 3-6, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5; No. 3 Ons Jabeur of Tunisia beat Marie Bouzkova of the Czech Republic 3-6, 6-1, 6-1; Tatjana Maria defeated Jule Niemeier 4-6, 6-2, 7-5 in an all-German matchup.

Norrie, Jabeur and Maria all earned the right to make their debuts in a Grand Slam semifinal.

"Can't enjoy it too much now," said Norrie, 26, who was born in South Africa to British parents, grew up in New Zealand and played college tennis at Texas Christian University. "Just get ready for Novak in a couple days."

'Most stressful thing' in tennis creates angst at Wimbledon

HOWARD FENDRICH
ON TENNIS

Imagine this happening in your line of work: Posted online and regularly updated for the entire world to see is an objective, black-and-white assessment of how you've been faring over the past 52 weeks, how you compare to your colleagues and competitors and how your current status compares to that of a day, a week, a month, a year ago.

Essentially, that's what the rankings are for a professional tennis player. Match victories are rewarded with points, which generally remain on a player's record for 12 months, then drop off. They are, in many ways, the sport's currency.

"It's the most stressful thing about our job," said Paula Badosa, a Spaniard who entered Wimbledon at No. 3 in the women's rankings. "We spend so much time thinking about the rankings: 'If you win this match ...' or 'If you lose against this player, you're going to lose your spot.' It's a lot."

At Wimbledon, the Grand Slam tournament that concludes Sunday, there is an additional — and unprecedented — source of angst: No one is earning any ranking points at all. That's because the WTA women's tour and ATP men's tour decided not to give them out in response to the All England Club's ban on athletes from Russia and Belarus over the war in Ukraine.

So someone like Ons Jabeur is dealing with two sets of emotions. She is excited, of course, about what she's done over the past 1 1/2 weeks on the grass courts, reaching her first Grand Slam semifinal and becoming the first Arab woman to get that far at a major. Her five wins moved her closer to the trophy and earned plenty of money (at least 535,000 pounds, or about $640,000).

There's also a bit of a downer amid the euphoria.

"I'm not going to lie to you. The more you do good, the more you regret not (getting) any points," said Jabeur, a 27-year-old from Tunisia who is ranked No. 2 and will face close friend Tatjana Maria, 34, of Germany in Thursday's semifinals.

"I don't just look at myself, but I also look at Tatjana," Jabeur said. "Now she makes a good run, and she doesn't have points."

A player such as the 103rd-ranked Maria loses out on the jump she would have received for faring so well a year after missing Wimbledon because she had just given birth.

And players who did well at the event a year ago do not get the chance to "defend" those points. The 2,000 earned by Novak Djokovic for his 2021 championship, for example, will simply drop off his record next week with zero replenishment, even if he ends up with the title again.

Returning a season later to the site of success can weigh on athletes who are well aware that those year-old points are about to disappear.

"That's inevitable. And if you don't think about it, people remind you," said Tamara Zidansek, a 24-year-old Slovenian who reached the French Open semifinals while ranked No. 85 in 2021.

That was the main reason for her rise to a career-best No. 22; she is down to No. 60 after losing in the third round in Paris in 2022.

"It's probably different for everyone, but I spend a lot of time thinking about the rankings," said Taylor Fritz, the highest-ranked U.S. man at No. 13 entering Wimbledon, who won't get the significant bump that his quarterfinal appearance Wednesday usually would bring. "It's a big part of my goals to be in the top 10, top five."

Djokovic already owns the men's record for the most weeks at No. 1 — he's now No. 3 behind reigning U.S. Open champion Daniil Medvedev, who is Russian and barred from Wimbledon — and said he's no longer as concerned about rankings as he once was. That might be a good thing, because the new up-to-the-minute "live rankings" the ATP unveiled as part of a recent sponsorship deal show that he'll drop to No. 7 next week.

A vocal critic of the ban and the tours' response, Djokovic estimates "90-plus% of the players who are playing in this tournament, and the ones that are not playing, are going to be more affected by" the zero-points situation than he will.

So true. Rankings are a "benchmark," as 2021 U.S. Open semifinalist Felix Auger-Aliassime of Canada put it.

As he also noted, they're so much more. Endorsement deals can be tied to the rankings. Favorable seedings, which might make a path through a bracket easier, come via the rankings. Access to the main draws at tournaments are based on the rankings.

"That's how the system is," said Auger-Aliassime, who lost in the first round last week, "and you have to accept early in your career that's how it's going to be."

Another way in which rankings affect things: Going into each match, a simple way to guess at the possible outcome is glancing at the numbers beside each player's name.

Reddick's team confident after breakthrough Cup Series win

BY STEVE MEGARGEE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. — Tyler Reddick finally has his first Cup Series victory and probably a spot in NASCAR's playoffs.

He is not letting off the gas now.

The Richard Childress Racing driver and his team have bigger goals than simply qualifying for the playoffs.

"We talk about being a contender for the championship, and I think we can. I truly think that we will be a contender for the championship when we get into it," team owner Richard Childress said Sunday after Reddick's win at Road America.

Strong statement for a team that only earned its first Cup win Sunday, in Reddick's 92nd career start. But Reddick had come close enough before — five runner-up finishes before his win at Road America — and was reigning NASCAR champion Kyle Larson's preseason pick as surprise driver of the year.

So it's been a buildup to get to victory lane and now Reddick will try to carry his new momentum into Atlanta Motor Speedway, where NASCAR races this Sunday and Reddick was a contender in the spring until a late crash.

Reddick had acknowledged just one week before Road America how frustrating it has been to fall short of that breakthrough first Cup win. He'd been driving his partner, Alexa, crazy as he struggled to take the next step.

"I'd say I was pretty miserable," Reddick said. "I don't think Alexa enjoyed being around me when I'd run second place. Yeah, second place isn't a bad place to finish. But we're here to win races."

His first victory came on the course where he experienced one of the low points of his career.

Reddick recalled a disastrous performance in a 2018 Xfinity Series race at Road America that had him questioning whether he had what it takes to make it as a driver at the highest level.

"It was about here that things could have went one of two ways," Reddick said. "It could have went one way where I was pretty much giving up ... I don't think I had it. But I had a lot of good people around me that believed in me, got me back where I needed to be, and from that point on, things have been a lot better.

"It's really crazy that this is the place I got my first win because this place four years ago had me questioning everything."

The win showed how far Reddick has come as a road-course driver since the early stages of his career.

"He was like: 'Man, I hate road course racing. I'm not very good at it,' " crew chief Randall Burnett recalled. "He's pretty good at everything he does, so for him to say that, it was a little bit of a challenge."

Burnett credited Reddick for working tirelessly to make himself more comfortable on road courses.

"I think that's a nice little cherry on top, for him to know that he's worked that hard to get as good as he has on these places," Burnett said. "So I think it's pretty special for him to actually win on a road course for the first time."

Holmgren shines in Salt Lake City Summer League debut

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALT LAKE CITY — Chet Holmgren shined in his summer league debut, scoring 13 of his 23 points in the first quarter to help the Oklahoma City Thunder build an early 20-point lead en route to a 98-77 victory over the Utah Jazz on Tuesday night.

The No. 2 pick in the draft also had seven rebounds, four assists and a Salt Lake City Summer League-record six blocks in 24 minutes.

Holmgren, a versatile 7-footer from Gonzaga who averaged 14.1 points and 9.9 rebounds and ranked fourth nationally with 3.7 blocks per game, finished 7 of 9 from the floor and 5 of 5 at the free throw line.

Holmgren made 4 of 5 shots in the first quarter, including three 3-pointers. He sat out the first six minutes of the second quarter before finding Jalen Williams for a dunk to make it 42-22. Holmgren made six straight shots after missing his first attempt.

HEAT 94, WARRIORS 70

Serbian forward Nikola Jovic scored 25 points and grabbed nine rebounds on Day 3 of the California Classic in San Francisco.

Jovic, the No. 27 overall pick, was 5 of 7 from 3-point range and shot 9 of 16 overall. Six of his rebounds were on the offensive end, helping the Heat to a 47-23 edge on the glass. Jovic has played for Mega Basket in the Serbian league, averaging 11.7 points on 43% shooting in that league this past season.

KINGS 87, LAKERS 75

No. 4 pick Keegan Murray scored 16 of his 24 points in the second half, and Sacramento finished the California Classic unbeaten after beating Los Angeles.

Murray, the Big Ten's leading scorer at 23.5 points a game, also had seven rebounds and three steals. He was 9 of 16 from the field, including 2 of 4 from 3-point range.

Max Christie, a Michigan State guard selected with the 35th pick, had five points and eight rebounds for Los Angeles. Christie, the 6-foot-6 shooter and wing defender who left East Lansing after just one season, was 1 of 6 from the field.

GRIZZLIES 103, 76ERS 99

Jake LaRavia, the No. 19 pick out of Wake Forest, made four of Memphis' 15 3-pointers, and the Grizzlies won the opening game in Salt Lake City.

Memphis led by as many as 17 points. The Grizzlies made 7 of 9 3-pointers in the first quarter and finished 15 of 30. Memphis also had 29 assists on 37 made field goals.

Philadelphia had the ball down 101-99 with 15 seconds left but Jaden Springer had it stolen by fellow former Tennessee star Kennedy Chandler.

Ziaire Williams made two free throws with 0.1 seconds left to seal it.
